Jeremy Mallenby, Patricia Mallenby : Aboriginal Cultural Differences in Probation Sentencing before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Aboriginal Cultural Differences in Probation Sentencing:

As noted by the Judge in R. v. McBride (2003), I place a great deal of confidence in the judgment of experienced probation officers. As such, because the Courts appreciate a detailed Pre-Sentence Report by the Probation Officer, anyone contemplating becoming a probation officer must realize that a lot of reading, investigation and compilation is required and hopefully the current book, although not exclusive, gives the reader an opportunity to pour through some of those cases.
