

Competition Law on the Global Stage: David Gerber's Global Competition Law in Perspective

David Gerber, Nicolas Charbit, Elisa Ramundo
ebooks / Download PDF / *ePub / DOC / audiobook

Download Read Online

#5861775 in Books 2013-11-11 Original language: English PDF # 1 10.00 x .44 x 7.011, 1.15 #File Name: 1939007208174 pages | File size: 19.Mb

David Gerber, Nicolas Charbit, Elisa Ramundo : Competition Law on the Global Stage: David Gerber's Global Competition Law in Perspective before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Competition Law on the Global Stage: David Gerber's Global Competition Law in Perspective:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Endorsement by Keith N. Hylton, Boston University School of Law By Elisa Ramundo Any book on international competition law is likely to take as its starting premise the notion that national competition law regimes can learn something from each other. That premise is clearly reflected in 'Competition Law on the Global Stage: David Gerbers Global Competition Law in Perspective.' The list of contributors is impressive, and each contribution offers a valuable perspective on global issues in competition law.

The Institute of Competition Law had the privilege to collect contributions of the "Global Competition Law Conference," organized by Professors David Gerber and Sungjoon Cho, held on October 28, 2011 at Chicago-Kent College of Law. The Conference's goals to expand the discussion on the future of competition law on the global level fully embody the Institute's mission. This collating volume includes ten contributions signed by prominent antitrust practitioners and academics. Readers will be offered the opportunity to explore the various views on the current and future developments of competition law on the global level as enlightened by David J. Gerber, Eleanor M. Fox, William E. Kovacic, David A. Hyman, Xiaoye Wang, Laurence Idot, Spencer Weber Waller, Andr Fiebig, Javier Cortzar-Mora, Wentong Zeng, and Mor Bakhoum.

"Any book on international competition law is likely to take as its starting premise the notion that national competition law regimes can learn something from each other. That premise is clearly reflected in 'Competition Law on the Global Stage: David Gerber's Global Competition Law in Perspective.' The list of contributors is impressive, and each contribution offers a valuable perspective on global issues in competition law." Keith N. Hylton, Boston University School of Law. "From China to Africa, through Europe and the USA, competition law has become international. More than 100 competition laws exist in the world today, three quarters of which were adopted in the last twenty years. "Global Law on the Global Stage" puts into perspective the work of David Gerber on global competition. A must-read book for those interested in developments in the law of transnational competition." Martine Behar-Touchais, Professor Sorbonne Law School, University Paris 1. "David Gerbers Global Competition provides an invaluable contribution to the understanding of the mutual influence competition regimes and practices exert on each other throughout the world, fifteen years after having offered a comprehensive and cross-disciplinary overview of the development of European competition laws, then as now, to much acclaim. Mindful of the present, David Gerber also lays the foundation in his book for robust scholarly work in the future with his insistence on devising the right analytical tools, supported by the requisite data. This matters as the growing tide of globalization prompts stakeholders to form a view which must be informed, not only by the national context, but also by regional or supra-regional considerations. By their quality and their variety, the perspectives brought together in this collection of contributions provide an exciting and rich addition to the overall reflection on the globalization of competition law." Bruno Lasserre, French Competition Authority. "The book presents us with an extremely well written collection of articles coming from different authors ranging from scholars to legal practitioners around the world. The result is a melting pot of experiences, opinions and viewpoints specially crafted for antitrust enthusiasts. Through the pages we can savor the extraordinary contribution of David Gerber to the field of antitrust law, with impact not only in the United States but in the whole world. The Reader will also discover a pleasant yet erudite narrative of the antitrust insights in diverse jurisdictions. It can be said that David Gerbers: Global Competition Law in Perspective accomplishes its title, being a diverse collection of antitrust wisdom with the indelible seal of Professor Gerber." Alfonso Miranda Londoo, Javeriana University Law School, Bogot.